A LIGHT IN THE WINDOW.

BY R. CAMPBELL.

An unfortunate child wanders out on the wild, desolate, lost and night; To arrest his young sight And direct him aright In the window a lamp is kept lighting.

A prodigal son, His maid reveals, To light up his track, And welcome him back, A lamp in the window is shining.

An impenetrable fog, His mother's lone joy, Has treated her ill, But she yearns for him still, And her lamp in the window is shining.

Ye, who live without hope, Take heart and look up, For a prodigal's return, And a welcome of love, And a light in the window still burning.

GEORGE V. N. LATHROP, UNITED STATES MINISTER TO RUSSIA.

General satisfaction is expressed in President Cleveland's appointment of George V. N. Lathrop, of Michigan, as Minister to Russia. He is a well equipped lawyer, a capable and polished gentleman, and did not seek the honor conferred upon him, for which his eminent fitness singled him out. The salary of his appointment is $17,500 a year, than which no larger compensation is paid to any United States Minister. His rank as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary is also the highest.

He is a native of Connecticut, and is somewhat above sixty years of age. After a usual preparatory education he became a student of Brown University, where he was graduated in 1838. He then entered Harvard Law School. After graduating in his professional studies, he opened an office at Detroit, Michigan, for the practice of his profession. There he was soon recognized as a leading citizen. He was practiced in building up a good practice, and leaves for St. Petersburg followed by the regrets of his fellow citizens of Detroit.

In 1848 he became Attorney-General of Michigan. He was a delegate to the National Convention held at Charleston, in 1860. When the Democratic party split in that year, he stood by Douglas, and was a Union man during the struggle for its maintenance. Three times a candidate for the United States Senator from Michigan, he was unsuccessful each time. Mr. Lathrop has at no time been conspicuous in political matters, though a staunch Democrat always.

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. ### Washington Letter.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

May 23, 1885.

Editor Herald:

I have learned from those who are admitted to the inner councils of the White House that the President is very much embarrassed under the weight and the multiplicity of his duties. He possesses both the capacity and the habit of hard continued work, and he has been accustomed to examine every matter brought to his attention before giving it his official sanction. This plan may have been feasible in the Mayor's office at Buffalo, or even in the gubernatorial office in Albany. But the Presidency of the United States is a different sort of a contract. Mr. Cleveland knew this before he came to Washington, but he now realizes it in a way that experience alone can teach. He at first tried to delegate the appointing power to various Cabinet officers, and to this relieve himself of an army of office seekers, but he soon found that the appointees of his Cabinet needed careful supervision in order to avoid those mistakes which the French statesman said were worse than crimes. These are some of the reasons why the administration is going slow, why the rascals linger and hold on. Another reason is the absence of Col. Lamont who is the President's most trusted lieutenant and co-worker. The President has long been relieved by the skill and tact of Colonel Lamont from a hundred daily vexations, and his protracted illness at this time is keenly felt by him.

The necessity of turning the rascals out becomes daily more apparent. This is nominally a Democratic administration, but the camp, the court, the woods are full of traitors and assassins, synonyms not too strong for a majority of the Republicans now in office. They are at the desks in all the Departments. They guard the doors to the offices of all the Bureaus, and play the part of malignant spies while protecting themselves with the shield of Civil Service. Last week an utterly worthless man was discharged from office, but he happened to have been a Union soldier and the incident was the occasion for a concerted howl from the whole Radical press. If the Republican party expects to mourn in this way for every drunken ex-Union soldier that shall be discharged it will need an untiring choir or it had better get a concert of locomotive whistles with triple brass throats. The Government Departments must not be an asylum for drunken, worthless partisan loafers, and the fact that they served in the Union Army may have entitled them to bounties and pensions, but it should not entitle them to clerical positions which owing to natural incapacity and contracted vices they cannot fill.

There was a great rejoicing in the Government offices over the election of Logan to the Senate. Some clerks tried to conceal their joy, but with many delight was irrepressible. There was a Logan cannonade on Wednesday last at the untimely hour of one o'clock at night. A big gun was dragged to the nearest available spot to the White House and fired one hundred times to the great annoyance and vexation of hundreds of sleep and sleepy citizens. The first report was believed to be a dynamite explosion and the continuous firing of the cannonade woke up the entire city. As the firing was without permission of the city authorities and against the law at such an hour, it has been the occasion of much indignation and complaint, and will be the subject of an investigation. Hundreds of people who were awakened by the racket believed General Grant was dead or that some great event had occurred and came down town to learn that it was in honor of Senator Logan's re-election by a lot of government clerks, who had not the bravery to make their demonstration except in the dead hour of night. Turn the cowards out.

The Atlanta Constitution.

In a long article relating to the B. B. B., of that city, says:

The Blood Balm Company started one year ago with $162.00, but to-day the business cannot be bought for $50,000.00.

The demand and the satisfaction given is said to be without a parallel, as its action is pronounced wonderful. We are glad to announce that our druggists have already secured a supply, and we hope our readers will supply themselves at once.

It is said to be the only speedy and permanent blood poison remedy offered, giving entire satisfaction in all cases before one bottle has been used. For Blood Diseases, Kidney Troubles, Scrofula, Catarrh, old Ulcers and Skin Diseases, try one bottle of B. B. B.

Women Should be Healthy.

[T. S. Clouston, in Popular Science Monthly.]

Perfect health is a priceless blessing to all, but it means even more to women than to men. The cheerfulness and vivacity that are their special characteristics, seem to exist not for themselves alone, but for their families as well, and these are, generally speaking, wanting if the health is bad. Woman is gifted with the power not only of bearing her own share of ills, but of helping to bare those of others. She can't do so in the same degree if she is not in health. She is a plant more difficult to rear than man in our state of society. More care has to be taken of her to mature and consolidate all her organs and functions. Once fully formed as a woman, she can then stand much, but she is especially liable to the effects of adverse conditions during her development. The full bloom of her perfection as the tender mother, the never-tiring nurse of a large family of children, cannot be attained if she has been stunted in her full development in any way. Whether she is an actual mother or not, she is infinitely the better for having the full capacity of motherhood. Be she teacher, scholar, or lady of fortune, she will be happier and do her work far better, if she has all the qualities of motherhood. They influence body and mind; any process of education that lessens them deprives the world of means of happiness. It stunts the woman and robs the world. No intellectual results, no culture, no mental elevation, can make up to the world for the loss of any perceptible degree of motherhood; and, as an actual fact, physicians find that over-education by bad methods and under bad conditions has this effect.

How Sympathy Depends on Appearance.

I have come to the conclusion, says a well-known writer, that human sympathy, like human respect, goes entirely on appearances. A man may be suffering agony from some hidden trouble of the brain or the body, but he will not get half as much sympathy as the man whose eyes are watery and whose nose is inflamed from a cold in the head. One fellow will have a headache that is splitting that portion of his anatomy open, but the fellow with the hollow, aching will divert every atom of human feeling in the vicinity. I don't know anything more exasperating than to have some one tell you how well you are looking when you are dying of indigestion. It's like watching a fellow crack nuts with his teeth when you've got the toothache. It is much more bearable to be told you look sick when you are well, than to be congratulated upon your healthy appearance when you are sick. The average human being will not believe a man is starving unless he can see his ribs. A man never gets much sympathy for a broken leg until it is all done up in splints. A carbuncle on the back of a fellow's neck will inspire more pity than a hidden spinal complaint. A man may travel around with an aneurism of the aorta and the fellow who has the shrewdness to go to bed with a sick headache will get all the jellies and stuff his lady friends can send him. This is a queer world.

Couldn't Make it out.

The proprietor of a tannery having erected a building on the main street for the sale of his leather, the purchases of hides, etc., began to consider what kind of a sign would be most attractive. At last he thought of a happy idea struck him. He bored an auger-hole through the door-post and stuck a calf's tail into it, with the bushy end flaunting out. After a while he noticed a grave-looking person standing near the door, with spectacles on, gazing intently at the sign. So long did he gaze that finally the tanner stepped out and addressed the individual:

"Good morning!"
"Morning," replied the man, without moving his eye from the sign.
"You want to buy leather?"—"No."
"Want to sell hides?"—"No."
"Are you a farmer?"—"No."
"Are you a merchant?"—"No."
"Lawyer?"—"No."
"Doctor?"—"No."
"Minister?"—"No."
"What in the deuce are you?"
"I'm a philosopher, I've been standing here half an hour trying to decide how that calf got through that auger-hole, and for the life of me, I can't make it out!"

The growing of mint for its essential oils is attracting some attention from Southern farmers. A couple of years ago a company was organized in Monroe county, Miss., and last year cropped one hundred and sixty acres in peppermint with satisfactory results. They gather two crops a year from the same plant, find the cultivation easy and the handling comparatively light. There are many localities in Tennessee and Kentucky peculiarly adapted to the growth of this plant, which if devoted to it, would yield a handsome profit.

About the Tariff.

[The Nation.]

It is a common thing for free-traders to denounce the whole body of tariff law as a mass of crudities and absurdities, flung together without plan or reason. But in fact there is not a line of it that does not show the most careful thought and the most experienced judgment. Every article that is enumerated is dealt in by somebody, and it is for the pecuniary interest of that somebody that the duty upon that article should be most judiciously regulated. To the ordinary citizen it may seem but an innocent absurdity that woolen goods should pay fifty cents a pound and thirty-five per cent. ad valorem; but to the blanket and flannel-maker there is no absurdity about it. It means to him a protective duty of about one hundred per cent. upon his manufactures, and entire relief from the competition of the hated foreigner. By the act of 1883, the duty upon cheap cotton goods was reduced from five cents to two and one-half cents per yard. It would be altogether too simple, however, to suppose that the Tariff Commission had any idea of reducing the burdens of the poor. Protectionists are to be feared vel dum ferentes. The truth is, that such goods can be made here as cheaply as anywhere, and the lower duty is just as prohibitive as the higher. The last revision of the tariff purported to bring about a general reduction of fifty per cent. As a matter of fact, almost the only duties reduced were those the reduction of which could affect no domestic manufacture, while in many cases duties were materially raised. On the whole, the changes were in favor of increased protection.

How Steel is Made.

There are two methods of making steel from iron. If the material worked upon is cast or pig iron, an excess of carbon must be taken from it; if it is wrought or malleable iron, carbon must be added to it. The second, or carburization method, is used for the manufacture of steel of the first quality. Two chests of fire brick or stone are fixed in a dome-shaped furnace so that the flames from the hearth below can play effectually around them. A layer of charcoal or of soot is placed on the bottom of each chest, and upon this are laid the bars of wrought iron. These are generally about three inches broad and three-quarters of an inch thick and should be of iron of the best quality. They are arranged regularly a little distance apart, and the interstices between are filled up with charcoal, with which the bars themselves are covered about an inch.

Similar layers of bars are laid on these, each covered with charcoal, until the chests are filled. They are then covered in to a depth of six inches with a layer of damp clay or sand. One of the bars is allowed to project from the end of the chest, which may be examined from time to time to give indications of the progress of the operation. The furnace heat around the chest is now raised to 1,100° F.—the point found to be necessary to effect the carburization—and is maintained at this point for eight or ten days, or even longer, the period depending on the thickness of the iron and the degree of hardness desired in the steel.

At the end of the time the fire is gradually put out, and the bars allowed to cool by degrees, which takes some ten days more. The iron is now transformed into steel, but it is not of uniform texture. It is made homogeneous by breaking it up into small pieces, fusing it in a fire clay crucible and then casting it in molds. This yields the best and hardest steel known, but as it is very brittle when brought to a red heat, very great care is needed in manufacturing it.

The Language of Eyes.
It is said that very quiet eyes, which impress and embarrass one with their repose, signify not only self-command, but also much complacency and self-conceit.

Restless eyes that cannot look steadily in the face denote a deceitful, designing mind.

Eyes in which the white has a yellowish tinge and is streaked with reddish veins prove much of strong passion and hasty temper.

Very blue eyes bespeak a mind inclined to coquetry.

Gray eyes signify dignity, intelligence and excellent reasoning faculties.

Greenish eyes, falsehood and fondness for scandal. A malicious mind is often indicated by greenish eyes.

Black eyes show a passionate, lively temperament, and oftentimes a most delicate disposition.

Brown eyes are generally tender and true, indicating a kind and happy disposition.

How he Won Her.
A young editor, bright, poor and punsterious, says the Merchant Traveler, had won the affections of a rich man's daughter, and they fixed a day for him to call on the father, and on that day he was promptly in the old gentleman's office.

"Good morning, sir," he said, confidently, but ready to run. "I have called on you on a matter of—"

"We don't want any advertising to-day," interrupted the old gentleman, looking up over his glasses.

"I'm not on that business, sir. I came to ask you for your daughter."

"What do you want with her?"
"Marry her."

"What does the girl say?"
"She says she will be my wife."

"Light! You haven't got a cent in the world, have you?"
"Yes, sir. She gave assent, and if you will do the same, that will make two and we can buy a postage stamp and write to you for the balance of our salary."

It was a wretched attempt, but he got the girl.

Anecdote of John C. Calhoun.

[Youth's Companion.]

Few statesmen have wielded such a powerful personal influence as John C. Calhoun. His hold upon the young men of the South was wonderful in its tenacity. He so fascinated them that they became his enthusiastic disciples, and were proud to call him master.

His sway over the conservative educated class, clergymen, doctors, judges, lawyers, journalists, was as powerful as over the young men. He was not a man of the people. From them his habit of abstruse thought and the severity of his utterance seemed to divorce him. Yet even the uneducated masses loved him. They did not understand the man, but they trusted the statesman, and obeyed the leader.

An anecdote shows the characteristic power of the great South Carolinian, and perhaps indicates one of the qualities of his character that gave him influence over the common people.

When Mr. Calhoun began his political career, a fierce struggle raged in South Carolina. One party sought to overthrow an aristocratic feature of the State Constitution. The proposed change was earnestly resisted by the Conservatives, and the contest excited the whole community.

Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Yancy were the leaders of the hostile parties. Each was the idol of his band. They met in public debate, and then followed one of the strangest scenes in American politics. Mr. Yancy publicly confessed himself a convert to his rival's view, and joined his party.

Yancy's friends were almost struck dumb with surprise. One of them, an eccentric man known as "Uncle Jacob Marvin," was a violent partisan, who could see nothing right in an enemy and nothing wrong in a friend. He loved Yancy, and hated Calhoun.

When he heard that his friend and leader had gone over to his personal foe and political enemy, he swore, with much blasphemy, that he would thrash Calhoun.

Straightway he started to execute his threat. Finding Calhoun, who had been informed of Marvin's vow, walking on the piazza of his hotel, the angry partisan took a stand where his enemy would pass him.

Mr. Calhoun approached, bowed, spoke a kind word of salutation, held out his hand, which was not taken, and then with a bland smile passed on.

"Uncle Jacob" was spell-bound. Several times Calhoun passed and re-passed, each time with the same gentlemanly salutation. At last, the unmannered "Jacob" could no longer withstand the genial advances of his great adversary. Impulsively he grasped Calhoun's hand and telling him his errand, begged his pardon.

Arm-in-arm the two walked the piazza, while Mr. Calhoun, in language adapted to "Uncle Jacob's" understanding, cautiously pressed his political views. The fierce partisan became another of Calhoun's converts, and after that one of the fiercest of his followers.

Mr. Calhoun did not profess to be governed in his conduct towards other men by the precepts of the New Testament, but he certainly acted out the Master's rule as to the treatment of enemies. The result showed the rare good sense of the statesman, and verified the wisdom of the Man who "spoke as never man spoke."

Forty Years Ago.

[New York Sun.]

Coffins were very plain and burial caskets were unknown. Tombstones had larger epitaphs and more verbiage engraved upon them. Eggs were a shilling a dozen and butter was considered dear at 18 cents a pound.

Much of silver currency, tips, levies and dollars, was of Mexican and Spanish coinage.

The country retail trade was much better, as people could not so easily run to the city by rail.

Business letters were more voluminous and formal, and were written in a precise, round hand.

There was York currency, eight shillings to the dollar, and New England currency, six shillings to the dollar.

The diet was more submerged with grease, the winter breakfast usually being made of salted ham and hot cakes.

Dinner was simply a hasty lunch at noon, and little importance was attached to the necessity for good digestion or a period of rest after eating.

New Orleans and Muscovado molasses, very black and thin, was the common sweetener for buckwheat cakes. Refined molasses was almost unknown.

The bank bills were of State banks, and the further west their locality the shakier they were. Illinois and Indiana bills would barely pass in New York.

Bread was home-made. Coffee was freshly ground ever morning, and the grinding of the family coffee-mill was a familiar sound hours before the children arose.

Negro minstrelsy was just cropping out in the traveling circus. There were generally but two performers, who assumed male and female characters. The popular melody was "Jump, Jim Crow."

People did not live as long as they now do, but as the average health was good as at present. They ate more meat, more grease, more hot

MR. JESSE S. WILLIAMS has received the nomination for the Legislature by the Democrats of Ohio county. Mr. Williams is a polished gentleman of ability and legislative experience, and will doubtless be elected. It is a pleasure to vote for such a man as Jesse Williams.—Breckinridge News.

HENRY M. STANLEY, the great African explorer, once a common correspondent of the New York Herald, has been chosen governor of the Congo State. He is zealously active and more effective than any one else in trying to improve and secure civilization in that wild country. His books about his travels and adventures are as interesting as romances.

HARRISON, the Boy Preacher, is still the rage in Louisville. He performs ground and lofty tumbling acts daily and nightly, climbs posts, leaps the railing, gesticulates, and allures many weak creatures to the anxious pen; stirs up excitement and produces no real and lasting conversion. Emotional preaching doesn't amount to much; it denotes infirmity in the preacher and in those he influences.

A splendid banquet was given to Mr. Boyd Winchester, Minister to Switzerland, at the Galt House in Louisville last Friday night. Many prominent persons were present, and appropriate speeches marked the occasion. Mr. Winchester's remarks were especially good, and indicative of a better man than several prejudiced and licentious newspapers of both the State and nation have pronounced him.

THE Greenville Echo in answer to the Louisville Commercial's defense of Judge Thos. Henry Hines, hits again the honorable justice. It says that in the year ending March 1st, 1884, Judge Pryor decided 189 cases, Judge Hargis 103 cases, Judge Lewis 49 cases, and Judge Hines 45 cases. It is true that Judge Hines hasn't done an enormous amount of work, or a reasonable amount even, and has been abroad most of his term for his health.

THE Temperance Alliance, a strong organization of citizens, is having a hard time of it in enforcing the prohibition laws in Kansas. The Bacchanals are always one trick ahead of their opponents, and manage by the latest hook or crook to obtain a sufficient quantity of spirituous, vinous or malt liquor for the satisfaction of their obstacle-removing thirst. The Alliance may lead the bibbers to water, but they can't force them to drink it teetotally.

THE Kentucky Union railroad was completed to within a mile of Clay City, Powell county, last week, and when the first train arrived there much enthusiasm was exhibited by the wondering natives. Some dandies and others stood on head, and the whole crowd dispersed helter-skelter into the rocks and thickets at a sudden and terrific escape of steam from the engine. We would not get scared, but how high celestially good would we Hartford folk feel, would a shining and proud locomotive make its blustering and propitious entrance into our ancient and drowsy town. We would be willing to stand on our heads for a week.

THE question of the Afghan boundary has been satisfactorily and definitely settled between England and Russia. A friendly spirit marked the conduct of the treaty. The grand old man, Premier Gladstone, will now no longer for a time be bothered by the detestable human curs that have been barking at his heels for the past several months; his star is again in the ascendant, undimmed by the clouds of political envy and hatred and journalistic vituperation and flippancy. We cannot understand why some influential and apparently decent newspapers in this country exert themselves to slur at England and her Prime Minister, the first nation and the first statesman of the globe.

In a last week's issue of the New York Sun there was an article from Miss Elizabeth Cleveland, the President's sister, containing a tart reply to the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby's remarks on the total abstinence question. The Doctor said that excellent women who happened to have drunken husbands or sons, were afforded no reason to advocate complete abstinence for everybody. He had heard a good woman, whose boy had severely cut his finger with a knife, wish there were no knives in the world, that they were all destroyed. With this for a text, strong-minded Miss Cleveland gives the reverend Doctor a piece of her mind, and pours out a stream of verbose sarcasm, like the average woman, and in a manner that does not fix her intellectual and literary abilities at or near the topmost notch. She classes the intemperance evil and hydrophobia in the same category; she thinks a little liquor is not a whit better than a little mad-dog virus; and she cries for the suppression and annihilation of mad-dogs and whisky. The flurried lady supports her beliefs and notions with a patent touch of rant, as if a crazy cur or an inebriate, or both, had just run in the house. The naughty preacher will crawl in, and the White House Amazon might gird herself and strike for Kansas to aid the Alliance.

AILMENT IN THE ORIENT. The Almighty, when he sent the pestilence that ravaged a few of the mountain counties in eastern Kentucky last fall, was vastly too merciful; he would have suited those that stand in awe of him everywhere, and would have wiped out a blotch from the much-blotched fame of our State, and promoted our welfare, had he allowed the plague, coupled with a deluge of fire and brimstone, to spread its fatal operation over the whole of that rugged and picturesque district, where the spirit of man is hardly on a par with that of the rattlesnake and the dragon that infest the aged crags and gloomy woods, and almost entirely exterminate the human vermin that have their being there. This would have prevented the numerous murders and assassinations that the barbarians have committed since, especially a most foul triple murder that was done about three weeks ago at Pineville, a hell-trap on the Cumberland river, the county seat of Bell county, of which two men and a fair and innocent girl baby, on their way from church, were the unsuspecting victims. The dastardly deed grew out of trifling political differences that would have been no further thought of in Ohio county, but a trifle is enough to excite a brutal murderer to an act of blood. The other day a grand jury dared to indict the murderer, Andrew Johnson, and his confederates, and the officers dared to arrest them, but a cowardly court let them off on bail. As the plainest matter of course the felons will go unpunished or slightly so, as far as the law is concerned. Johnson is a hero in Bell county, is only 22 years old and is already the author of five murders; he and his gang do as they please, and their lawlessness is unchecked. In another mountain county, Knott, recently established, lawlessness also prevails; respectable people are terrorized and are leaving the country; robbery and murder are rampant. Rowan county is in disturbance again, war between two political factions being impendent. Such is the condition of the eastern part of our Commonwealth, and such it will continue to be doubtless for a long time. The miserable inhabitants are seemingly incurable; death alone may cure them. Meanwhile it is a shame and a serious hurt to our State that the large and valuable mineral and timber resources of that extensive region are not fully developed and the people not blessed with law and order.

A mob at Franklin took from the jail two prisoners accused of arson and hung them last week.

Judge Caswell Bennett. It is well known that he whose name appears at the head of this article is now an aspirant for a position upon the Appellate Bench. Judge Bennett is too well known in this Judicial District to need even a passing notice. He presided as Judge of the Common Pleas Court here for thirteen years, and he would today hold that position had not the court been abolished by the General Assembly. He was always firm but affable and pleasant, wholly free from any sort of bias and always courteous to the bar. By these characteristics he soon won the esteem and good will of not only the bar but the officers of the court all over the District. No Judge has ever been more popular than he. He would scorn, as a Judge, to elevate himself at the expense of other people. He never thought himself too great to learn something from lawyers and always "avoided appearing wiser than counsel." His ability, like his integrity, was beyond question. He had a way of going right into the center of things, and his clear and concise way of expressing his judicial opinion would give you a clearer idea of the law than you could learn in an hour's talk from most judges. As soon as a case was stated to him he at once caught the points. With that modesty and diffidence which ever characterized true ability he always listened patiently to argument and when he began to render his opinion the force of his logic seemed irresistible. One thing which added to his great popularity was his kindness to young lawyers; and there was not one who practiced under him but who regarded him with admiration and possibly with affection. Judge Bennett is a man of remarkable mental power and legal learning, and if elected to the Appellate Bench he will give to it a strength and character which it has not possessed since the days of Hise and Robertson. It should be remembered that a Judge on the Court of Appeals Bench writes law to be read for centuries to come; the Judge should be selected because of his ability, his learning, his stern integrity. Such qualifications are all found in the person of Judge Bennett.—Henderson Journal.

SENATORIAL CONVENTION CALLED. At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of this the Eight Senatorial District held in Hartford Ky., June 1st 1885 the following resolutions were adopted viz:

Resolved That a convention of the Democrats of the said district be held in Beaver Dam, Ohio county, Ky., on Monday, June 22d, 1885 for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent this district in the State Senate for the next term.

Resolved, That the Democratic Executive Committee of the several counties of the district are requested to call mass conventions of the Democrats of their several counties to be held on Monday June 25, 1885 to select delegates to attend said district convention.

Attest: THOS. J. SMITH, Chairman Ex-committee.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. On Monday, June 1st 1885, at 1 o'clock, P. M., the Republicans of Ohio county convened at the Riak in Hartford, Ky., for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent Ohio county in the next General Assembly of Kentucky.

The convention was called to order by Mr. Wm. Milligan, in a brief and pointed speech; after which Col. Q. C. Shanks was chosen chairman, and D. M. Hocker, secretary. Upon taking the chair, the Colonel entertained the convention for 30 minutes in giving a review of the Republican party.

The convention then proceeded to make nominations as follows: R. R. Wedding, of Rosine, in a few fifty choice remarks, put in nomination Dr. J. W. Meador, of Pottsville; E. D. Guffy, of Hartford, nominated Herschel B. Taylor, and R. P. Rowe nominated Wm. Milligan. Short and sensible addresses were made by several parties, among whom were R. P. Rowe and E. D. Guffy. The chairman then proceeded to take the vote, which resulted as follows: For J. W. Meador, 25 votes; H. B. Taylor, 23; Wm. Milligan, 11. On motion the blindfold man was dropped, and a second vote was taken, with the following result: Mr. Taylor, 34; J. W. Meador, 29. Upon motion, Mr. Taylor was unanimously nominated.

Upon receiving his nomination, Mr. Taylor made a very sensible speech, showing his fitness and ability for the office of Representative. Dr. Meador and Mr. Milligan both made very impressive speeches, congratulating H. B. Taylor on his success.

A motion was made to publish the proceedings of the convention in the Hartford Herald, and the convention adjourned. Q. C. SHANKS, Ch'm'n, D. M. HOCKER, Sec'y.

KENTUCKY PATENTS. The following patents were granted for the week ending May 26th, 1885, reported expressly for this paper by Jos. H. Hunter, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, 936 F Street, Washington, D. C.:

Chas. B. Webb, Hopkinsville, metal breeching eye; J. M. Fink, Louisville, riding saddle; J. W. Martin, Winchester, bee hive; J. A. Fisher, Covington, saw set; G. E. Medley and M. W. William, Hopkinsville, lathe.

The case of Chas. Wing for the murder of Cruger, the Princeton town marshal, was called last week, but Wing was so drunk he was unfit to be seen in the courthouse, and Judge Grace after making some preparation for the trial to begin on Tuesday morning, ordered the Sheriff to take him to jail. Wing is a desperate character and if ever one deserved hanging he does. He shot down an innocent and inoffensive officer in cold blood, and has never ceased to gloat over the inhuman deed. A late dispatch from Princeton says a jury has been empaneled in his case, and the evidence has all been given in and his trial will doubtless be carried through. One of Wing's main witnesses has gone back on him and his case is regarded as almost hopeless.

STATE NEWS.

The residence of Gen. Frank Wolford burned Tuesday at Columbia.

A telephone line from Princeton to Evansville has been completed.

A disastrous fire took place at Harrodsburg, Ky., on Tuesday night of last week.

Blair's Hotel, at Sacramento, burned on Tuesday night of last week. Covered by insurance.

Wm. Greenwell was run over and killed by a train of cars in Nelson county one night last week.

Mrs. Haldeman, wife of John A. Haldeman, of the Courier Journal, died Monday morning of last week at Louisville.

An attempt was made Monday last week to assassinate Jas. B. Sears, editor of the Jessamine Journal, at Nicholasville.

Suit is to be brought against Robert J. Breckinridge for the recovery of his alleged shortage as treasurer of the Knights of Honor.

A lump of coal from Cloverport, Ky., known as Breckinridge canal coal, weighing 2,500 pounds was shipped to London, England, recently.

Two juries have failed to find Lon Howard, the murderer of Cal Smith, insane. It is supposed the next trial before which he figures will be the grand jury of Daviess county.

Jack Swoope, who was hit in the head with a hatchet at Curdsville by Bob Layson, recently, an account of which appeared in the Herald at the time, is reported as being barely alive.

Rev. James E. Stone, of Havesville, died on the 21st ult. He was Clerk of the Circuit and County Court of that county for over 35 years. He was the father of Mrs. Dr. Taylor, of Owensboro.

Habery's tobacco factory at Bremen, was burned last Wednesday morning. The house contained about 40,000 pounds of tobacco. No insurance. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

James Dearman, a young man about 15 years old, while working on a raft of saw logs in, in Mud river, one day last week, fell into the river and being unable to swim was drowned before he could be gotten out.

Sheriff Duncan, of Hardin county, took the following prisoners to the penitentiary Tuesday: H. N. Holdsworth, forgery, 7 years; David Thurman, grand larceny, 1 year; Isham Standiford, grand larceny, 1 year; Wm. Crody, housebreaking, 3 years.

W. S. Gilbert, alias W. G. Howard, who stole two horses, a wagon and other property belonging to Mr. Wm. Gregory, of Daviess county, was captured at Russellville on Monday of last week and brought back to Owensboro and lodged in jail. Howard is formerly from Logan county.

Harry Holdsworth has been sent to the penitentiary for seven years for Elizabethtown for forgery. Holdsworth was of the firm of Hotopp & Holdsworth, bankers, and forged checks on his partner to the extent of several thousand dollars. He ran away and was captured in New Orleans.

The Echo says, during the past week more tobacco has been brought to town than we ever remember to have noticed in the same length of time. Not less than one fourth of a million pounds have been delivered since last Saturday. On Saturday it is estimated that 150 wagons were unloaded at the different factories.

Col. Wm. H. Rowan, County Clerk of Nelson, had a narrow escape from death last Saturday morning. He was handling a shot gun when the charge exploded. The shot struck him just behind the ear and tore the skin off several inches of the scalp. The wound is severe. A deflection of the muzzle of the gun one half inch would have caused his death.—Record.

The Russellville Herald Enterprise says: "Alex Grinter, for log stealing; Ed Bunch, for shooting and wounding; Elton Galloway for cutting and wounding; Joe Beauchamp, for perjury; Jerry Evans, for fornication; Jim Tully for the same offense, and George Beauchamp as a nuisance, all colored, and all indicted at the last term of the Circuit Court, have been caught and jailed in the last week.

Jordan Taylor, who is to be hanged June 26th, in Hopkinsville, Ky., has professed religion and expressed a desire to be immersed in the river, but as this proceeding cannot be allowed, a baptism will be arranged in the jail if he insists upon being immersed. Jordan has recently been shaved and his health has been considerably improved and he is now fat and healthy. He has taken up an idea that by some means he will escape the gallows.

A steam mill, near Richieu blew up last Monday, killing instantly, three men and a boy and injuring others. The engineer, we understand, was badly but probably not fatally scalded. The accident is said to have been caused by a boy tinkering with a tap or bolt after he had been warned of the danger. One Mr. Bowman was torn into small pieces. The sawyer was thrown against the saw and torn in two. One of the men killed was a black man.—Green River Republican.

The Glasgow Times says so far as we know, there has never, for the season, been such an epidemic of mad-dog rumors. In one or two localities, schools have been closed through fear of the raging canines, and consternation is widespread. As a wise measure of prevention, every stray dog should be shot, and to strike right at the root of the evil, about half of those not strays might also with advantage be interviewed with shot guns. If no other cure is attained, the life of many an humble, lowly sleep, will be indefinitely lengthened.

Livermore is very much excited over a scandal that has recently come to light at that place. Cooper Crab, a young man who had been engaged as agent there for some time, and a young lady of that place, whose name the paper have withheld, are accused of having too intimate a relation. It is due to Mr. Crab to say that he acted the gentleman in the matter, and went at once and offered to marry the girl, which her parents refused to allow him to do, and the general verdict is that they are more to blame than either the boy or girl, for they refused to listen to rumor, or in any way to restrict their liberties. The girl has been the organist in the church, and she persists in saying that she will continue to act in that capacity. This the young ladies of the town say will cause them to quit the Sunday-school. The mother of the girl says if they do she will tell things worse on many of them, and so it is a bad state of affairs at best.—Echo.

Farm and Live Stock Notes. Give live stock salt weekly. Avoid last year's mistakes. Sow oats and barley early, or not at all.

Millet is excellent food for young chicks. No gain ever comes from working the soil when wet.

In stock breeding, blood from the sire, beauty from the dam, should be the rule.

The larger the roller, the more level will be the ground after passing over it. Beekeepers will find profit in the red raspberry, both as a honey and fruit-bearing plant.

Sow sugar beets and other root crops in a rich spot if you have one; if not, sow in the best you have, and make it up as far as possible by labor in working the soil.

DOUBLE CROPPING.—This is one of the paying secrets of the market gardener's business that farmers should avail themselves of. To raise two crops in one season the soil must be rich and otherwise in good order. First there may come early peas, potatoes, cabbage, or any soiling crop, to be followed by turnips, pickles, rutabagas, cabbage, etc.

GALLS ON WORKHORSES.—These are liable to appear on horses newly put to work, or those breaking in a new harness, or saddle. A few days rest until the abraded parts heal and harden, should be allowed if possible. Nothing will cause a fresh and bleeding gall to dry up and cicatrize so soon as a little table salt sprinkled upon it. To prevent white hair, a mixture of burned leather, hard and gunpowder is valuable.

SHADE IN THE PASTURES.—The eagerness with which shade is sought by sheep and cattle in hot weather ought to lead to the planting of some trees in each pasture. Where there is no shade at present, rapid growers like the silver maple, or any of the broad-growing poplars, would be best. In moist soils the elm is almost unequalled as a quick growing shade tree.

SELF MILKING COWS.—The old device of a neck rack which prevents the turning of the head to the side, is perhaps the best preventive known. This consists of two square frames placed around the neck and connected with each other at the four corners by light sticks, which keep them about a foot apart. The cow's appearance is not improved by such a fixture, but the habit may be broken in time.

FOOD FOR YOUNG TURKEYS.—Not so many young turkeys would die, if greater attention was devoted to their food. For the first week equal quantities of hard boiled egg, chopped fine, and good wheat bread will suit them. This may be followed by curd made from sour milk, and bread made of coarse flour and wheat shorts. If confined, some chopped roots or dandelions as well as some clean sharp sand may be furnished. Beyond six weeks old, screenings or small wheat may constitute a large part of their food. Young turkeys need frequent feeding and pure water.

WARFARE AGAINST INSECTS.—In the orchard no quarters must be given to the enemy. The tent-caterpillar's presence is easily detected, as the dew on the nests in the morning shows them up conspicuously. Every sign of their existence should be destroyed, as can easily be done when they are small. Borers in the trunks near the ground must be probed or cut out. The curculio will begin its work at once, and must be met by shaking the trees and catching the insects on a cloth and killing them.

The Atlanta Constitution, in a long article relating to the B. B. B., of that city, says: The Blood Balm Company started one year ago with $162.00, but to-day the business cannot be bought for $50,000.00.

The demand and the satisfaction given is said to be without a parallel, as its action is pronounced wonderful. We are glad to announce that our druggists have already secured a supply, and we hope our readers will supply themselves at once. It is said to be the only speedy and permanent blood poison remedy offered, giving entire satisfaction in all cases before one bottle has been used. Dr. Carson's Nerve Tonic FOR MEN.

This medicine has been used by me in my practice for many years, for the treatment of Nervous Prostration, Absent Mindedness, Mental Debility, Impotency, and all affections of the Kidneys and Generative Organs, with the most gratifying results. I have never lost a patient who used it, but it has saved the lives and restored the health of thousands, who, had it not been for its timely help, would have ended their days in insane asylums or have sunk into premature graves. I am now giving up the active practice of medicine, and desire to place this TONIC where it will do the most good. I have therefore put it up in pill form, so as to send it through the mail in plain wrappers, free from observation, to all parts of the world. Hundreds of testimonials of positive cures, which have been pronounced "miraculous," are now in my office, which were accomplished solely by the use of the NERVE TONIC. A large and varied experience satisfies me that no medicine known to the profession will restore lost vitality more rapidly and permanently than this. Every form of nervous weakness, especially that of the generative organs, such as "Spermatorrhea," "Prostatorrhea," "Impotency," etc., is completely cured by it, and cured by a single box. Below is an endorsement of it by the distinguished editor of Health and Home, Dr. Hale, who knows of its virtues by having used it so successfully in his own large and lucrative practice.

SINGLE BOX, $1. SIX BOXES, $5. Address DR. CARSON, 723 Twelfth Street, Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15th, 1884.—We have known Dr. Carson for several years, and we know what he states in the above advertisement to be literally true. In fact, in our own hands the tonic has done more than the Doctor claims for it. He is an honest and reliable physician. W. H. HALE, M. D., Editor Health and Home.

Don't fail to attend the entertainments to be given by the teachers and pupils of Hartford College, at Court Hall, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

An old man by the name of Fievalen, living near Rochester, committed suicide last Friday night, by blowing his brains out with a revolver. Cause of the rash action is unknown.

Messrs. Wm. R. Jones, of Fordville, Zeb W. Smith, of Rockport, and Ben. F. Bartlett, of Bartlett's precinct, were appointed Supervisors of the assessor's book. They were in session all last week.

Notwithstanding the rain on Saturday and exceeding muddy condition of the roads, a large crowd was present on Sunday to witness the dedication of the Baptist church and partake of the basket dinner.

John S. Moseley, while fishing in Muddy Creek near town, on Saturday evening of last week, caught a goggle-eye fish, which weighed seven pounds. John was still living when last heard from.

United States Marshal Gross' brother Matt was arrested out in Missouri last week for palming himself off as a deputy Marshal. He was tried and released. Matt is of sound mind and is now a thorough vagabond.

The wretched condition of Hartford's plank walks make them a subject of general ridicule and censure by both the citizens of the town and frequent visitors. It is absolutely not safe to walk upon them as they are, and steps should be taken to remedy this crying necessity.

Mack, the beautiful and sweet little canary songster, belonging to little Annie Fogle, died last Saturday morning, of old age. This sweet warbler lived to cheer the hearts of many, and was the pet of the neighborhood.

It is too late to grieve after the milk is spilled. Likewise it is too late to grieve after your house is burned. Then to keep you from grieving come at once and have your property insured in the old reliable California.

Mr. Herschel B. Taylor, the gentleman nominated by the Republicans Monday to make the Legislative race, is a sober, moral, honest, intelligent man and is probably as strong a nomination as they could have made.

Persons learning to skate always expect a few tumbles, and as Mr. Herschel B. Taylor put on his Legislative political skates in the Rink here last Monday, he looks for nothing else but a tumble on the first Monday in August.

Dr. Meador, who came very near being the choice of his party as its candidate to combat, and try to overwhelm Jesse S. Williams in August, desires it to be understood that he was not at all seeking the honor, and is content to be a humble private in the ranks.

The young ladies of the "M. G." Society of Western Kentucky College, South Carrollton, have extended us an invitation to be present at their closing exercises this evening. We wish, and predict for them a successful entertainment, and regret our inability to attend.

On last Wednesday morning, at the completion of the call of the Equity Appearance Docket, Judge Little remarked that he had never seen such a large percentage of the summonses executed. This compliment was worthily bestowed on our Sheriff, R. P. Hocker, and his deputies, L. P. Loney, G. C. Butler and J. P. Gilmore, who have proven themselves active, faithful officers.

Master Ernest Anderson, son of the merchant, S. W. Anderson, of our town, passed the May examination for the U. S. Naval School held at Annapolis, Md., on the 20th of May, and is now a Cadet of the Academy. Out of seventy-five candidates fifty failed to pass the examination. Young Anderson being the only one from Kentucky. The boys start on their first cruise on the 10th inst.

Mr. Jeff Stevens, of Sulphur Springs neighborhood, was in town Monday and got roped in by two drunken Northville, one named "Bob" Wilson, and name of the other we did not learn, and was fleeced out of a five dollar bill. One of them enticed him off down below town and showed and explained to him the "three card monte" trick. The other negro came up as a stranger and won Uncle Jeff's $5, whereat he squealed and set the grand jury and the officers of the law after them.

Mr. E. H. Burton, a former citizen of this county, writes us that he is living near Avilla, Comanche county, Kansas, in a sod house, and is very well pleased with the country around him; he thinks it equals any in fertility and that he has so far seen. The production of corn in ordinary seasons is from 30 to 35 bushels per acre, of wheat from 20 to 50 bushels, and of oats from 50 to 110 bushels. There is a peculiar kind of rough land there; it contains a mineral substance which in winter is brought to the surface by freezing and thus adds to the strength of the soil. He has always liked the HERALD, and now that he is far away from his old home he likes it a great deal more.

Dedication of the Baptist Church in Hartford.

Rev. J. B. Moody delivered the dedicatory sermon to the vast multitude that thronged the court hall to hear this eloquent divine. Although it had rained almost incessantly for days, when the dedication morn dawned upon us, the clouds rolled back and the sun set forth its approving smile. The day was beautiful and bright, and the joyous birds seemed to sing a happier song on this occasion.

Rev. Mr. Moody is a fine speaker, a clear, earnest and impressive reasoner, and his choice language contained all the keenness of the invisible lance, and was brought to bear with the consummate skill of a masterhand, insomuch that the finest texture of a healthy nerve was undisturbed in its passage to the diseased heart. He admonished us as a little flock to cultivate these Christian virtues towards each other that so much beauty and adorn our lives. There is nothing so transcendently beautiful as these graces of God, fashioned and hung in eternal crystals. Love and charity in the heart sheds an influence that far exceeds the fragrance of a summer garden.

When this, Ohio county, was formed it embraced Davies, parts of McLean, Butler, Breckenridge and Hancock, and was uninhabited save by a few whites, who lived inside the fort at this place, the forests surrounding being the abode of roving tribes of Indians, which made frequent attacks upon them; and near the spot where the new edifice now stands was the first church organization formed in this entire county, something near a hundred years ago, surrounded by those circumstances that tried the hearts of men, and composed of only three gentlemen and two ladies of the Baptist faith. The new church, after having three hundred dollars donated them by the Home Mission Board of this Association, still lacked some three hundred to liquidate its entire indebtedness. Dr. Coleman, in a very modest and pleasant manner, appealed to the audience, and they finding it much more delightful to give than to receive, in a few minutes raised four hundred, even more than sufficient to cover the contingent expenses. After the benediction they adjourned to the cool, shady yard that surrounds our capitol, where an abundant and sumptuous dinner was served by the good citizens, and after all had feasted there was much to spare.

After an hour or so spent in kind greetings and hand-claps, the bell in the tower at the new edifice chimed the hour to consecrate in prayer to God, the shrine where we worship, the temple in which we rejoice and the sheet anchor of our every hope and thought.

The dedicatory prayer was offered by Rev. J. S. Coleman, and was it a wonder that stillness and solemnity prevailed, if the guardian angels who spread their protecting wings lovingly over us, shedding their divine influence, were our sainted grandmothers and grandfathers who kindled the first spark of christianity near that altar?

An Ancient Relic.

Mr. Wm. B. DeHaven, of Horton, informed us last week that his brother, John DeHaven, of Rockvale, Breckenridge county, had in his possession a skillet, which is a novel as an old-time relic. The vessel is oval in shape and has a flange or rim around the top. It has been transmitted down to the third or fourth generation, and is supposed to be about one hundred and fifty years old. It is still in a good state of preservation.

Hartford History.

While in conversation very recently with one of the old citizens of this county we learned that Hartford, our neighboring county town, was first settled in the year 1777. The information was based on the statement of Uncle John Moseley, one of the old veterans of this county, who was born in Culpeper county, Va., June 2, 1777, during which year his father came to this State, and was one of the first to cast anchor at the little fort a few hundred yards above where Hartford now stands. This makes Hartford 108 years old. We are also told that the usual weight of this man Moseley was 350 pounds. He died February 21st, 1844. He was married to Jane B. Falton. To this couple were born twenty-five natural children; thirteen lived to maturity, twelve of them, eight sons and four daughters, lived to be married.—Outlook Courier.

The Baptists in the United States.

There are 2,507,703 regular Baptist communicants in the United States, not including the Free Will Baptists, Anti-Mission Baptists, or any of the minor sects. They report 125,740 baptisms last year, and since they do not practice infant baptism, each baptism represents a convert. They contributed during the year more than $7,000,000 for religious objects. They have 111 institutions of learning, whose property and endowments foot up $16,066,964. They publish 82 denominational periodicals. Their wealthiest institution is Brown University, Providence, R. I., whose endowments and property sum up to $1,577,028. Next to Brown, the wealthiest institution in this country is Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., with property and endowments amounting to $1,753,398. Vassar, as our readers know, is a school for girls. Baptists are more numerous in Georgia than in any other State, numbering there 256,991. In Kentucky there are 172,358 regular Baptist communicants, and their contributions last year to religious objects amounted to $288,688, an average of $1.64 per member.—Courier Journal
